

I DON'T CARE

I am a postdoc. Unionizing means higher costs for Cornell and the faculty to support graduate students. That means it is economically better to hire post-docs instead of adding more graduate students to a lab. That means my job is secure while the students who want to come after you are in limbo. So I say vote for the union and deny people the privilege that you have to study here.

Carrie

Postdoc Stock Photo

CARE-5AM

Research grants rarely cover health expenses. Your faculty advisor covers that for you. Once a grant has been written, good luck getting more money to increase your salary. Think Cornell has enough to increase your salary? Think your advisor has enough money to give your dependants health coverage? You must have swallowed the blue pill.

This poster was made by 5am Productions. No graduate students were harmed or charged 1.15% of their income to create this flier. Please do not take this down.

If you want a copy, email cage@drakos7.net